A luncheon benefiting the Child Abuse Assessment Team at Legacy Salmon Creek Medical Center

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 2013
VANCOUVER HILTON

The Salmon Creek Cares luncheon will raise community awareness and funds to support medical assessments for children who have experienced sexual abuse, physical abuse or neglect. We invite event sponsors and donors to stand up for children by supporting Salmon Creek's Child Abuse Assessment Team (CAAT). These children need our help to begin healing.

In 2009, Legacy Salmon Creek Medical Center began providing medical assessments for children who had been sexually abused. The need for other assessments – for children who had been physically abused or who suffered from neglect – quickly became clear. Kim Copeland, M.D., a pediatric emergency physician at Legacy Salmon Creek Medical Center, responded to this need. Dr. Copeland leads the Child Abuse Assessment Team that work with these difficult cases, giving children a voice.

The need is great

In 2012, CAAT received more than 260 child abuse referrals, provided 120 medical assessments and responded to 21 inpatient cases. Dr. Copeland also provided 71 medical consultations on child abuse cases from other areas within Washington State. The incidence of child abuse — both nationally and in Southwest Washington — has only increased in the last three years.

In support of a secure future

Your support will raise awareness about this critical need in our community – and will directly support the hundreds of children referred to CAAT every year, including those who are uninsured and those whose families are unable to pay for the exams. Please support this critical program, and bring the light of hope to children in our community.

Thank you

Last year, 340 caring community members attended the first annual Salmon Creek Cares Luncheon and raised more than $115,000 to support child abuse medical assessments at Legacy Salmon Creek. Thank you for your continued partnership.
