Continuous advances in pediatric care make it essential for those who provide this care to remain current in the evaluation and management of pediatric illnesses, diseases and conditions.

The Randall Children's Hospital at Legacy Emanuel Current Topics in Pediatrics conference provides state-of-the-art updates in pediatric care.

Participants will gain practical knowledge from the multidisciplinary faculty via lectures, case presentations and literature reviews on current information for a variety of conditions affecting children and adolescents.

Randall Children's Hospital

2018 Current Topics in Pediatrics

Target audience

Practicing pediatricians, family practice physicians, primary care providers, nurse practitioners, nurses and allied health care professionals

Desired outcomes

- Discuss ways to implement evidence-based practice changes to optimally treat neonatal abstinence syndrome in the primary care setting.
- Review the diagnostic criteria for, the prevalence of and the effectiveness of frenotomy for treatment of tongue-tie (ankyloglossia) in infants.
- Describe the epidemiology of syphilis, the clinical manifestations in infants and pediatric patients and recommended treatment regimens.
- Review common and uncommon presenting signs and symptoms of and treatment guidelines for newborn CMV.
- Identify tools to use in advising children and parents in reducing the negative impacts and increasing the positive impacts of technology engagement.
- Present data from RCH participation in multicenter research studies of inpatient asthma management and reduction of excessive variability in infant sepsis evaluation.
- Discuss the common pitfalls encountered and practical aspects for managing the pediatric patient with anxiety or depression.
- Summarize current pediatric and neonatal research and how it can be applied in practice.
