

Helping you navigate through cancer treatment

Legacy Cancer Institute

Support along the way

Having cancer can be an overwhelming experience. Our nurse navigators are registered nurses trained in cancer care and can be a personal guide for you through your diagnosis and treatment.

Nurse navigators and you

The nurse navigators are here to ease the burden on you and your family and to help coordinate the care you receive from your health care team.

Your nurse navigator will help you:

- Understand your diagnosis and available treatment options
- Understand the side effects of your treatment and help you manage the symptoms
- Voice any questions or concerns with your doctors and medical team
- Make referrals and/or schedule appointments
- Understand your medications
- Explore work-related or financial concerns and connect you to appropriate resources
- Find transportation to your appointments, if necessary
- Find your way around the hospital campus
- Review resources for family support

The nurse navigators work closely with Legacy Cancer Institute staff and physicians. In most cases, the nurse navigator will call you upon learning of your diagnosis. You may also contact the nurse navigators directly.

Legacy's nurse navigators are available Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. to any Legacy patient treated at any of our sites. They are available by phone or in person at Legacy Good Samaritan and Legacy Meridian Park medical centers.
