Molecular Panel
Discussion to include updates on the new AJCC 8th edition staging guidelines, the use of gene assays and the benefits of a molecular tumor board.
Program objectives

1. Identify the use of immunofluorescence for detection of sentinel lymph nodes.
2. Summarize the history of debulking surgery and improved survival in advanced ovarian cancer.
3. Identify risk-reducing measures for women with increased genetic risk of cancer.
4. Define different types of immunotherapy.
5. Explain the physiology of hyperbaric oxygen treatment and how it helps patients with chronic radiation tissue injury.
6. Explain discrepancy between all breast screening recommendations.
7. Identify indications or consideration for automated breast ultrasound.
8. Discuss multifaceted decision making on prophylactic mastectomy.
10. Identify long-term implications of oophorectomy and management of these patients.
11. Discuss the rationale behind cryoblation in the management of early stage breast cancer.
12. Discuss the role of genomic analysis of primary breast cancer for prognosis and planning of therapy.
13. Discuss the data that led to a change in breast cancer staging.
14. Describe how molecular tumor board can play a role in clinical practice and outcomes.
