What you don’t know can hurt you

Heart screening for teen athletes

Even kids who seem healthy and have passed a physical may have heart problems. Randall Children’s Urgent Care is working with the David Heller Foundation to help.

Our pre-participation sports exam with athlete cardiac screening checks students ages 13–19 for potential heart problems.

The low-cost screening includes height, weight, body mass index (BMI) measurements, a cardiac physical exam and, if needed, an electrocardiogram (ECG). Convenient evening and weekend appointments are available to fit your schedule.

Exams are performed by pediatric physicians. ECG results are reviewed by pediatric cardiologists. In most cases, results will be available within 24 hours.

Registration is required, and a parent or legal guardian must accompany all participants for the entire visit.
